Tax Writers Begin Hunt For Revenue

Co-op, Mutual
Field Canvassed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—Tax-writing senators took up a hunt for new revenue sources today to help offset 1.5 billion dollars in cuts they have made in the 7.2 billion dollar house bill.

The Senate Finance Committee voted to boost corporate taxes by two billion 280 million dollars a year—but they redistributed the rate to give small corporations a break.

The committee's decision would raise 760 million dollars a year less than the corporate plan approved by the House.

This revenue loss was added to 880 millions cut out of the House measure by earlier votes—for a total revenue loss of about one billion 640 million dollars.

Some downward adjustment of this to around one and a half billions may result from considering the effect of smaller dividends on personal income revenue.

CHAIRMAN George (D) Ga. still hoped the committee would raise some new revenue from taxing undistributed profits of cooperatives and mutual companies. He estimated at least 75 or 100 millions might be raised there. This field is being canvassed today.

The big loss in revenue by the senators' action resulted from their retaining the present excess profits credit of 85 percent instead of lowering it to 75 percent as did the House. This cost an estimated 610 million dollars in revenue.

The other 150 millions in lowered government income resulted from the Senate changes in the normal and surtax rates.

The Finance Committee boosted the normal tax rate from 25 percent to 27 percent—instead of the 30 percent approved by the House. It then went on to increase the surtax rate, which the House left untouched, from 22 percent to 25 percent.

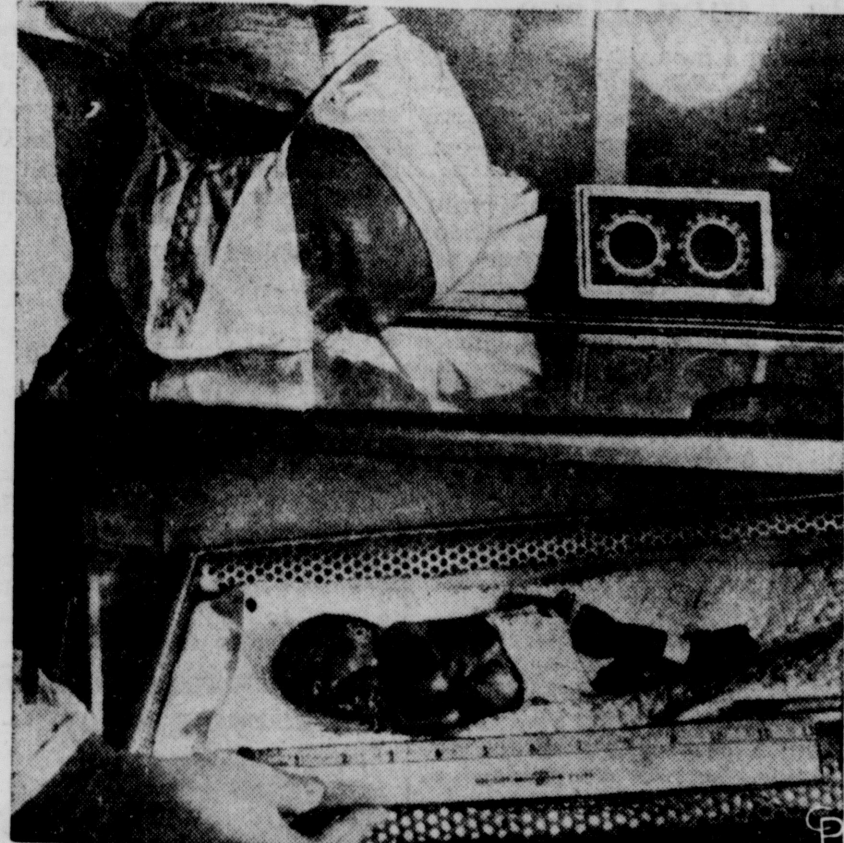

Both the House and Senate bills would make the top bracket rate for large corporations 52 percent, and result in a combined income and excess profits rate of 82 percent.

The Senate committee, like the House, approved a 70 percent maximum tax, and set Dec. 31, 1953 as the termination date for the corporation increases.

But They Left No Fingerprints

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 28—An Indianapolis man is itching today to get his fingerprints on the men who took some of his prized equipment—but he has no clues.

The men stole an elaborate fingerprinting kit from Don W. Calvert, 67, who used it as a hobby. Police said the thieves left no fingerprints.

'SOLUTION IS POSSIBLE'

Harriman Says Next Move Is Iran's In Oil Tangle

LONDON, Aug. 28—W. Averell Harriman said today the "next move is up to Iran" in the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute, and warned that Iran "is a fertile field for penetration by the (pro-Soviet) Tudeh Party."

He said "I believe a solution is possible."

President Truman's special envoy, who talked with Yugoslav Marshal Tito last Saturday enroute from Tehran to London, reiterated that "we agreed the surest way to prevent war is to build up armed strength."

Harriman told a news conference that he and Tito "discussed a program of expanding military strength and aid from the United States."

Harriman, who conferred yesterday with Premier Attlee and key British cabinet officials on the oil nationalization dispute with Iran, said:

"A cooling-off period may be valuable. I am disappointed but not discouraged. The visit by Stokes improved the atmosphere and provides a sound basis for future negotiations and eventual settlement."

BRITISH Lord Privy Seal Richard Stokes, as head of the unsuccessful mission to Iran, offered Iran a 50-50 profit sharing plan, which was rejected.

"I explained to Iranian officials," said Harriman, "that there is plenty of oil in the world and the market for Iranian oil will be supplanted by other oils and it will be most difficult in the future to recapture the market."

The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company which Iran has nationalized has the production skills and market organization lacked by Iran.

"I have been frank and direct with Iranian officials," said Harriman, in explaining the commercial and practical aspects. "But we must realize the nationalist feeling in Iran is deep-seated. It must be dealt with in a realistic way."

Harriman said the Iranians have not threatened to do business with the Russians and he does not think the Iranians can operate the oil industry without the British.

He warned that an oil settlement and improvement of Iranian living conditions are needed "to guard against Communist infiltration."

Boyle also told newsmen that neither President Truman nor Vice President Barkley has given him any indication of 1952 political plans.

He added that the national committee has not discussed the name of Ohio Governor Frank Lausche as a possible vice presidential candidate and that most party officials hope Sen. Taft will run for the Presidency because "we think he would be the easiest to beat."

CLARK MADE this announcement a few hours after Mr. Truman warned that the work stoppage "has an immediate and very serious impact on the defense program." The President expressed the hope that the workers would go back to their jobs.

Chairman George W. Taylor of the Wage Stabilization Board appealed to the strikers to go back to work while the board examines and reports on proposals for increased wages and a pension plan.

At least 58,000 mine-mill union members walked out early Monday morning as a result of the controversy. Government officials said 100,000 workers ultimately would be involved if the strike lasts.

The President rejected a union request for seizure of the copper industry. Instead, he referred the case to the wage board, as he has done in some other instances where strikes interfered with defense output.

Union leaders expressed deep dissatisfaction over management's rejection of a proposal by the Federal Conciliation Service to end the strike.

RED CHARGES REVIEWED

Communists Are Accused Of Plotting New Tricks

TOKYO, Aug. 29 — (Wednesday)—Gen. Ridgway's headquarters accused the Communists Tuesday of plotting new trickery and more faked evidence in the Red demand for Allied "reinvestigation" of the alleged bombing of the Kaesong truce zone by Allied aircraft.

The statement indicated that the UN commander has no intention of acceding to the Communist demand to admit responsibility for the purported bombing as the price for resuming broken-off peace talks.

Ridgway's public information office issued the statement at 10 p. m. Tuesday (7 a. m. EST) but it was not a formal, official answer to the Reds.

It said the latest Communist message delaying renewal of the Kaesong parley was merely an attempt by the Reds to "regain face" and possibly a move to "utilize their control of the conference area to their advantage."

THE HEADQUARTERS statement said:

"Should the investigation be reopened it is probable that much more convincing evidence of a bombing attack would be presented."

The UN statement went on to repeat earlier denials of any connection with the so-called bombing. It also denied any Allied responsibility for the Communist-reported August 19th ambush of a Chinese Red patrol in the truce zone.

Mexico Rushes Aid To Flood Stricken Area

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 28—The Mexican Government rushed supplies by air, sea and land today in a fight against malaria and epidemics in northeastern Mexico, which was hit by a hurricane and floods.

Six government planes began parachuting food, medicine and clothing to thousands of persons left homeless and isolated by flood waters in the states of Tamaulipas, Vera Cruz and San Luis Potosi.

Gen. Santiago Pina Soria, head of military aid, said the Airforce plans to drop 500 tons of corn, beans, rice, sugar, butter and medicine to the population.

Pemex, the government oil monopoly, used four motor boats and a large number of trucks to rescue stranded residents in the vicinity of Ebano in Tamaulipas State and to move in supplies.

Antonio J. Bermudez, director general of Pemex, after visiting the stricken area, said the most serious threat is posed by the swollen Panuco River at Tampico.

However, he described the losses at the petroleum installation at Tampico as "insignificant" and said operations are normal.

A social security medical group visited El Mante, in the State of Tamaulipas, and announced that the population is threatened with epidemics resulting from drinking contaminated water. It also said the flood waters provide a breeding ground for malaria-carrying mosquitoes.

'Greeting Card' Can Be Claimed

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28—Something new in "greeting cards" turned up on a counter at the Grand drug store in downtown Cleveland last night.

When Lanford Nenger, 26-year-old clerk, saw that someone had left an overnight case laying on the greeting card counter he decided to peek inside. The suitcase held a snake.

Whoever it was who left that snake in the overnight case can claim the reptile at the Animal Protective League and the case at the drugstore.

the truce zone.

The alleged bombing of Kaesong last Wednesday was the pretext the Reds used to break off peace talks.

The Allied headquarters release reviewed Communist charges of violations of the truce zone by UN personnel and labeled them an effort by the Reds "to regain face which they lost in the eyes of their followers" when the Communists were forced to admit their own troops committed a violation August 4th.

Laurelville Man Hurt Seriously In Auto Crash

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in a series of five traffic accidents Monday in Pickaway County.

Injured seriously was G. Henry Boden, 40, of Laurelville, whose auto was involved in a crash with a tractor-trailer outfit.

Deputy Walter Richards said the mishap happened at about 9 p. m. on Route 56 about three miles east of Circleville on Earnings Hill.

Boden was operating an auto west on the highway at the time while James Steele of 378 East Franklin street was operating a tractor-trailer outfit west toward Circleville.

RICHARDS said Steele jammed on his outfit's brakes to slow down for a crossing at the foot of the hill and that his rig jackknifed with the truck crosswise in the highway in the path of the Boden auto.

Boden was rushed into Berger hospital for emergency treatment of fractured ribs, a possible fracture of the left hip and severe shock.

Harley Congrove, a passenger in the Boden auto, was treated for back and nose injuries.

Meanwhile, Harry R. Moore, 36, of Circleville Route 1, suffered a bruised nose, ribs and burned fingers when his auto went out of control on Route 22 west of Circleville.

Deputy Jack Dewey said the mishap happened at about 6:20 p. m. Monday at a small creek on Route 22, about seven miles west of town.

Moore lost control of his auto on approaching the bridge. His auto struck the concrete bridge, skidded around in the highway and travelled backwards into a ditch.

The driver suffered burns on his fingers when wiring in his wrecked auto began burning. He ripped out the burning wires with his hands, Dewey said.

Moore Tuesday was held on $200 bond in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for Pickaway County grand jury action on an accusation of drunken driving.

No one was injured in the other three accidents which happened in the county Monday.

Fire Insurance Rates Lowered For Ohioans

COLUMBUS, Aug. 28—Lower fire insurance rates were in effect today for home owners and institutions in Ohio.

Walter A. Robinson, state superintendent of insurance, announced the reductions will mean a savings of a million dollars to the group.

Owners of business property, however, had their rates increased. The new scale will mean a jump of one and a half million dollars.

Favorable underwriting experience caused the reduction for home owners and institutions, Robinson said, while the increased rates resulted from large fire losses and higher costs for repairing and replacing damaged property.

The lower rates range from five to 15 per cent on buildings and as high as 20 per cent on contents. Business property rates jumped as high as 20 per cent on buildings.

UN Forces Driven Back By Heavy Red Pressure

KOREA, Aug. 28—Heavy Communist attacks along the east central Korean front Monday kept pressure on United Nations troops and drove the Allied forces back nearly two miles at one point.

Bitter fighting and increased artillery fire by both sides continued in the sector for the second straight day. Allied planes also joined in the battle, flying numerous close support missions in front of UN lines.

The main North Korean attack was northeast of Yanggu and north of the ridgeline along which UN troops recently captured a vital series of hills.

The Reds launched the attack shortly after sun-up with one counterattack by a Red regiment.

Japanese Leader Pays Tribute To U.S. For 'Fair' Treaty

TOKYO, Aug. 28 — Although the Japanese Peace Conference is still more than a week away, the Japanese nation became free in its own mind today when Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida and General Matthew B. Ridgway spoke from the same table—and Yoshida spoke in Japanese.

Yoshida, exhibiting his proud patriotism by using his native tongue instead of the English he knows so well, also paid tribute to the United States for offering Japan a "fair and magnanimous treaty" which he said was "unparalleled in history."

He said Japan owes this fair treatment not only to the United States as a government but to Ambassador John Foster Dulles, to Gen. Douglas MacArthur and to Gen. Ridgway.

He specifically named each. Yoshida recalled that it was America which "pulled Japan" out of its feudal isolation almost 100 years ago and said America "now is liberating us" from "inglorious military domination."

AT THE table with Yoshida, at a luncheon for 471 Japanese and Americans, were Ridgway, Gov. Earl Warren of California and Ambassador William B. Sebald.

Ridgway wished godspeed to the Japanese delegation to the San Francisco conference and said he has "complete confidence in the future of Japan as a free society."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 — President Truman today demanded the release by Czechoslovakia of Newspaper Correspondent William N. Oatis and charged that the former Czech Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk was "murdered."

The President presented the demand for release of Oatis and the charge that Masaryk was murdered to Czechoslovakia's new ambassador, Dr. Vladimir Prochazka.

The White House said the ambassador listened without making any reply to the President's blunt demand and statement.

The President swept aside diplomatic niceties and forthrightly attacked the Czech Communist regime when Prochazka entered the White House to present his diplomatic credentials.

The President told Prochazka that relations between the United States and Czechoslovakia had "deteriorated ever since Jan Masaryk was murdered."

THE PRESIDENT declared that the best way "that Czechoslovakia could make relations between the two countries more cordial" was to release Oatis and send him back to the United States.

The President's demand was given verbally to Prochazka when the ambassador presented his credentials of office after a formal written exchange between the President and ambassador.

The President's action was described by his press secretary Joseph Short as follows:

"The President further said that relations between our two countries had deteriorated ever since Jan Masaryk was murdered. Before that time the President said the relations between the United States and the Republic of Czechoslovakia had been wonderful."

"He mentioned the extreme friendliness of our political relations and our back-and-forth trade relations. But now, the President said, it looked as if our relations would not be what they had been until Czechoslovakia changed its policies."

"The ambassador made no response to those remarks." Prochazka was in the President's office about five minutes. (Continued on Page Two)

Copper Workers Refuse To End Strike Despite Truman Appeal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—Production of vital copper for defense remained at a standstill today when strikers refused to return to their jobs, despite an appeal by President Truman.

Meanwhile, the Wage Stabilization Board arranged for a hearing tomorrow afternoon in an effort to draft proposals for a settlement as quickly as possible.

Government officials emphasized that the strike is cutting into the already critically short copper supply, both for production of weapons and civilian durable goods.

UN Forces Driven Back By Heavy Red Pressure

KOREA, Aug. 28—Heavy Communist attacks along the east central Korean front Monday kept pressure on United Nations troops and drove the Allied forces back nearly two miles at one point.

Bitter fighting and increased artillery fire by both sides continued in the sector for the second straight day. Allied planes also joined in the battle, flying numerous close support missions in front of UN lines.

The main North Korean attack was northeast of Yangu and north of the ridgeline along which UN troops recently captured a vital series of hills.

The Reds launched the attack shortly after sun-up with one Communist company throwing itself at the entrenched Allied units.

ALLIED reinforcements were poured into the breach and halted the advance during the afternoon. The UN forces then began a drive northward.

Enemy artillery was so effective in this sector that in some instances it kept the UN forces pinned down for hours.

To the east, in the sector west of the coastal city of Kansong, South Korean forces continued the attack which was launched Aug. 17 for vital high ground and with the help of Allied artillery and air support took another of the hill objectives, beating off a counterattack by a Red regiment.

There was also a series of "aggressive" probing attacks by Communist units up to battalion size along the sector of the front south of the Communist buildup city of Kumsong. The Red assaults forced UN troops to make minor withdrawals.

The Fifth Airforce continued to blast Red trucks in North Korea. The truck toll rocketed to nearly 2,000 from three days action when 454 Red trucks were destroyed or damaged between midnight Sunday and midnight Monday.

THE PRESIDENT declared that the best way "that Czechoslovakia could make relations between the two countries more cordial" was to release Oatis and send him back to the United States.

The President's demand was given verbally to Prochazka when the ambassador presented his credentials of office after a formal written exchange between the President and ambassador.

The President's action was described by his press secretary Joseph Short as follows:

"The President further said that relations between our two countries had deteriorated ever since Jan Masaryk was murdered. Before that time the President said the relations between the United States and the Republic of Czechoslovakia had been wonderful."

"He mentioned the extreme friendliness of our political relations and our back-and-forth trade relations. But now, the President said, it looked as if our relations would not be what they had been until Czechoslovakia changed its policies."

"The ambassador made no response to those remarks." Prochazka was in the President's office about five minutes.

A Little Wait—or a Big Compromise!

If you have a Cadillac on order—or if you are giving thought to placing your order for one—we want to talk frankly with you about the matter.

There is, of necessity, some delay in delivery of new Cadillacs. You have to wait a while to get one—the time depending somewhat upon the model you select.

Naturally, you are being urged to purchase other makes of cars—which can be had almost as soon as your signature is on an order blank.

For the sake of your own welfare, we hope you will turn a deaf ear to all this—and hold firm.

If your order for a Cadillac is already in—let it stand, and be patient until your car is ready.

If you want a Cadillac, but haven't yet ordered it, do so at once—so the delay may be as short as possible.

It is a simple choice you have to make. You must choose between a little wait—or a big compromise.

You must make this choice because there is no substitute for a Cadillac.

There is no substitute for the deep world-wide respect in which it is held—

—there is no substitute for its marvelous over-all performance... so smooth, so quiet, so steady that to drive is to relax and to ride is to rest—

—and there is no substitute for the sheer joy of owning and driving it, so great that you will actually think up excuses for taking to the highway!

If you want a Cadillac—stand firm until you get it.

There is nothing else like it—nothing in all the wide, wide world that can take its place!

If your order for a Cadillac is already in—let it stand, and be patient until your car is ready.

If you want a Cadillac, but haven't yet ordered it, do so at once—so the delay may be as short as possible.

It is a simple choice you have to make. You must choose between a little wait—or a big compromise.

You must make this choice because there is no substitute for a Cadillac.

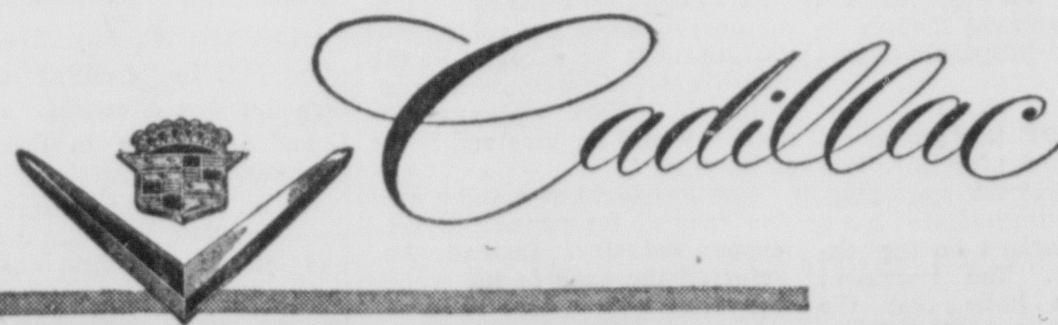

There is no substitute for the deep world-wide respect in which it is held—

—there is no substitute for its marvelous over-all performance... so smooth, so quiet, so steady that to drive is to relax and to ride is to rest—

—and there is no substitute for the sheer joy of owning and driving it, so great that you will actually think up excuses for taking to the highway!

If you want a Cadillac—stand firm until you get it.

There is nothing else like it—nothing in all the wide, wide world that can take its place!

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Year by year more facts are being accumulated which reveal that not nearly all children are ready at six to begin reading or to advance in reading at nearly the same rate. A very keen young woman writes:

"I am a second grade teacher. I am now engaged in studying a system of teaching primary reading of which I think you would approve.

The name of this plan is the Primary Continuous Program Plan instituted and being carried out in the International Falls (Minnesota) Schools.

"Grade divisions are to disappear in the primary department. What used to be the first, second and third grade is now a primary unit consisting of eight reading levels. It calls for the elimination of annual promotions and retentions and all concept of failure, providing instead a procedure by which the child may move along continuously through the primary unit at his own speed. A pupil would advance from one level to the next whenever tests and a teacher's judgment indicated that he had satisfactorily completed the requirements of the present level and was in a state of readiness for the next.

"For beginners, the basic rule is that no child shall be made to tackle reading until he is ready for it, no matter what his age. To be ready for reading a child must be:

1. Intelligent enough so that his mental age is six and a third or six and one-half years.

2. Mature enough to be self-reliant, rather than babyish.

3. Healthy enough so that school is an adventure, not a burden.

"I FIRMLY BELIEVE that there are more reading disabilities in older children caused by emotional blocks to learning than there are from lack of mental ability. I have seen many people with low IQ's learn to read very satisfactorily. I have seen many with serious reading difficulties who had high IQ's and what I call emotional blocks to learning.

"By eliminating the old stimuli associated with former reading (or spelling) failures and supplying an altogether new approach to learning, minus all the retarding emotion, by providing success at learning, a person can perform miracles even in the case of total reading or spelling disability. It takes time and patience on the part of the teacher, but the reward is out of this world.

"I believe that each child is entitled to satisfying first experiences with reading. And every child can be given successful, happy experiences with reading.

"The main problem in the schools is administrative and, believe it or not, the main objection to any plan for keeping the child from actual reading until he is able to succeed are the parents.

"Parents every often demand that we teachers give individualized instruction and at the same time they do not see how very individual that little fellow is. They wouldn't think of trying to force a six-month-old baby to ride a bicycle, but they expect that every child of six (and some below) should be forced to read regardless of whether he is as unready as the six-month-old one.

"We parents are proud and very set in what we think is normal progress. In our ignorance we are very cruel to children. I don't think you can possibly overemphasize that the child must enjoy success in order to have the heart to put forth his best efforts. Nor can you say too many times what you have said about the calmness and patience of the one who tries to teach children. More power to you!"

The foregoing plan reported has great merit and seems to be operating successfully in a number of other places.

'He Looked Like A Bum'

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28 — Comedian Bob Hope is playing a film scene with the Vancouver, B. C., hotel clerk who refused to give Crooner Bing Crosby a room some months ago.

Hope has nothing but praise for Art Cameron, the hotel clerk, "because he knows how to recognize a bum."

Cameron told Crosby to go somewhere else for a night's lodging because the bewhiskered groaner "looked like a bum" when he showed up late one night after a hunting trip and asked for a room.

Airforce Head Says Pilotless Planes May Come

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28—Airforce Secretary Finletter says he is confident the U. S. can develop atomic weapons for air attack on enemy troops and declared that secret pilotless planes are a possibility "in the near future."

Finletter stated, however, that United Nations air supremacy in Korea can be seriously challenged at any moment by the 1,000-plane Red Chinese Air force.

The secretary made his remarks in an address before the Fifth Annual Convention of the Air Force Association in Los Angeles.

Finletter attacked the theory of "balanced forces," with the Army, Navy, and Airforce sharing equally in defense spending.

He said the nation must pour its resources during the mobilization period into "top priority" tasks.

He implied this means increasing accent on air power, both to deliver an atomic attack on Russia should she launch an all-out war and to "bring atomic power to bear directly on the enemy's ground forces."

Soldier Travels From Tripoli To Win Jet Contest

DETROIT, Aug. 27 — Pfc. Thomas P. Baker, who journeyed from Tripoli to Detroit to enter the Plymouth International Model Plane Contest, today holds the model jet speed record.

The 23-year-old soldier from Kings Mountain, N. C., sent his four-pound, stubby winged jet to an official record of 132 miles an hour at Sunday's finals. The previous record of 111.46 was set by M. Georges Benedik of Budapest in 1950.

Pfc. Baker was on special furlough from Tripoli where he is stationed in the Airforce to enter the contest.

Dick A. Modler, 15-year-old Dayton entrant, won the junior gas powered control line title when his model registered 127.07 miles an hour.

Clifford Tellford of Cincinnati sent his model to a speed of 99.67 to win the senior group honors.

A NATION ON THE MOVE

PEOPLE today move from coast to coast as unconcernedly as they formerly moved from one block to another. And more are on the move than ever before—more than during the World War II peak, when more Americans than at any former period moved from town to town or from one state to another, frequently hundreds or thousands of miles distant.

That's the word from the annual convention of the Movers Conference of America at Chicago. That's what the big wheels in the moving business call their organization.

They never had it so good. One outfit which operates 2,000 vans in all 48 states and to major points in Canada had operating revenues of $21,000,000 plus in the 12 months ended June 30. A year earlier total take totaled only $15,600,000. The former peak was $17,000,000 in 1947. All other large companies in the field report similar, or larger, gains.

What's behind all this? War work, presumably. Movers say they are moving people to areas where large new plants are being constructed. There is a great migration to the Southwest.

Reaching peaks in boom periods, and secondary peaks in periods of depression, the moving business thrives on economic abnormality. In addition to the war boom and resultant decentralization of industry, a main reason for the migration of families is an easing of the housing situation, according to leaders in the moving business. That is, it is easier for people to find houses into which to move.

The average load of family furniture is smaller and lighter than a decade ago, with few pianos and fewer dining room suites. And modern furniture is more compact and more easy to haul than the traditional period stuff, according to leaders in the moving business.

SAME OLD STORY

JOHN W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, went all the way to St. Louis to tell a group of industrialists that the most important problem now confronting the nation is a balanced budget. He comes up with the usual bureaucratic solution: The people must spend less and send still more of their money to Washington.

A new Defense Bond drive is to be launched on Labor Day, and the Treasury head says there must be more and more taxes.

It's the same old story. The people must save while the government continues to waste. The quickest and surest way of balancing the budget, which Snyder says is so vital, is for the government to spend only within its means and forget its many socialistic schemes.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

It would be most unfortunate if, at this time, anything were to happen to lessen public support for the Japanese Peace Treaty. If American policy in Asia is to be effective, this treaty, together with the various treaties by which the Pacific Union is being formed, will not only be a symbol of strength but an indication that the policy of appeasement, continuous since 1943, has really come to an end.

There is a growing sentiment that General Douglas MacArthur, whose labors made such a treaty possible, should attend this conference and speak at it. This could have been accomplished in one of two ways:

1. To make him a member of the American delegation;
2. To have the conference invite him to speak to it.

The first door has been closed. The President has not invited him to be a member of the American delegation, although he spent several years working on the basis for this treaty.

As for the second method, the Russians surely, and the British probably, will reject him. At any rate, it would surprise everybody, including General MacArthur, if such an invitation were issued.

The State Department went about it in the wrong way. They sounded out the general and let it leak to the press that they were sounding him out. To do what? To make a speech?

But why make a speech? For whom would he speak? For his country? For his government? For himself?

In a word, they would like to have the advantage of General MacArthur's support of the treaty without giving him credit for his labors or recognizing him in any official capacity.

This kind of indirect dealing he correctly rejected as not fitting and that ended that.

Also, the absence of China, which had fought Japan since 1931, is an error. So far as the United States and the United Nations are concerned, there is only one legally recognized China, namely, Nationalist China situated on Formosa. Failure of this China to be present raises issues that will long plague us. It creates a quarrelsome public opinion in this country.

Yet, it is of the utmost importance, from a strictly American standpoint, that public opinion in the United States should support and uphold the State Department on this treaty. Without it, forces may be let loose in Japan that may imperil our position in the east of Asia even more than it is today, because Japanese public opinion has been keyed to great expectations. Another letdown, after the MacArthur dismissal, might be very damaging. The absence of both MacArthur and China gives the impression that the State Department is still under the British thumb.

The treaty itself could perhaps be improved here and there, but so could many other documents. I think it is just about as good as we can at this moment arrange, and further delay would not be advantageous.

Tonto sharply called the remaining men away from the rim. They swung into saddle and rode at a quick trot down the darkened slope to the valley below. Tonto's jaw set and his hands tightened on the reins.

The valley fires had been brought under control and the riders were grouped before the canyon, unable as yet to urge their horses onto the smoldering and blackened grass. Tex Jonas sat to one side, slouched over in the saddle. He looked around when Tonto rode up and lifted his shoulders expressively.

"Not a thing left. I reckon it's my fault, Tonto," Tonto said heavily. "It's happened, and none of us could figure it out beforehand. Seen Laramie?"

"No, Tonto. I tried to stop the canyon fire. But it kept burning ahead of us and we couldn't get around to check it. Lord, all that beef gone!" Tonto snapped. He stood up in the stirrups and called, "Laramie! Where's Laramie?"

The crew stirred, moved uncertainly. A man replied after a long minute of silence, "We ain't seen him, Tonto, none of us."

"Then find him," Tonto growled. "I want to know how this happened and where he was at the time."

The men scattered. Jess Ide moved his horse up beside Tonto and Tex, and stared heavily into the dark canyon. All three men showed their utter dejection. Suddenly Tonto jerked up his head at an alarmed shout off to the left.

"Jess! Hey, Jess! Come here, quick!"

New York nervously awaits the day when Mike Quill has all the cops, John Lewis has all the taxi drivers and Phil Murray has everybody else.

Mr. Lewis' campaign is dormant at the moment but that doesn't mean his meter is shut off. . . he's just parked with the flag down waiting for the lights to change again.

There's no indication of whether he'll move now or wait until election year which is a favorite time for embarrassing elected officials.

For Mike Quill, any time is a good time and while he is not listed as one of the feature attractions of Manhattan he is one of the city's curios.

Should he and Lewis start their big push at the same time the citizenry will get to use those shelters which have been set up for all-out war purposes.

In a smaller town the citizens would have long since gone back to the early statutes for a "public nuisance" clause and invoked it against the bouncy boys who erupt at will.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

"Laramie," Tonto breathed, wheeled his horse. The three men raced toward the sound of the voice. Just beyond the mouth of the canyon men stood in a silent circle. They parted as Tonto jumped out of saddle and strode up. He stopped short when he saw the dark huddle on the ground.

"It's Laramie, Tonto," someone said—paused, then, "He's—burned up."

"He must have been asleep when the fire started," Tex said, "and got caught."

Tonto looked around at the box canyon and the valley. He steered himself, bent down and struck a match. Laramie lay on his side. Tonto gingerly touched the charred form and rolled it over on its back. Some of the men turned away but Tonto gripped his teeth and struck another match.

Laramie's gun had been in its holster but the charred leather had allowed it to fall. The moment Tonto turned the man over, he saw that his hunch had been right. There was a hole in the center of the man's chest. Tonto sniffed out the match and arose.

"Better take him back to the ranch. Vic and the coroner will want to see him, I reckon."

"Shot!" Tex breathed. "Shot!" "Must have been someone he knew," Tonto thought aloud. "That slug was too well centered to have been fired from a distance at night."

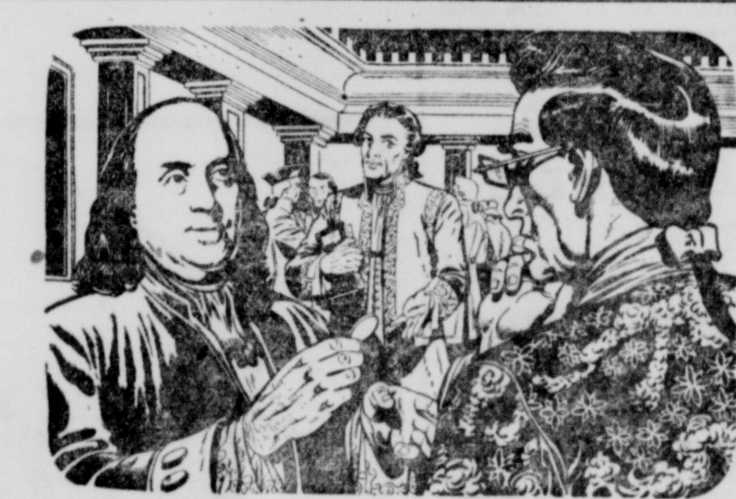

"Laramie knew about everybody around Avriilo, Tonto," Tex scratched his head. "You're taking in a heap of territory." "You're forgetting the beef we had corralled in here. Who knew about that?"

"I reckon it wasn't exactly a secret," Jess Ide said slowly, "and

NEW YORK—There are a thousand different worlds in this city but none is more fascinating than the one that you see before you now, as you stand in the bow of the Coast Guard cutter Sauk and wait to go down the bay to meet an incoming ship.

It is 6 a. m.—dawn of a hot and sticky summer day in New York. But here by Pier 9 of the East river the early morning is cool and the faint smell of salt comes to you from the dirty, oil-slicked water. A sea gull flaps his wings once and glides away off the stern, a poem in the sky. Cans and sticks float by. The buildings of downtown Manhattan are dim and gray and silent, with here and there a light, as if the cleaning woman had forgotten to snap off the switch the night before.

Customs officials, Coast Guardsmen and newspapermen, the keepers of the morning watch, come aboard the Sauk. They are subdued and quiet, for it is only two hours after the time of day when man's vitality is at its lowest ebb. Some of the newspapermen, in the great tradition, are hung over. Up the river, in the distance, cars already are beginning to cross the bridges to Queens and Brooklyn, and over on a neighboring pier a couple of dozen red and green truck bodies sit silently, waiting for a ship to take them Lord knows where.

The traffickers of the seas already are afoot. As you look out, you see tugs and ferries pushing their way around the foot of Manhattan. A large full of freight cars passes. You peer around the Sauk, a business-like craft painted in black and white, and through a hatch you look down and see seamen's laundry hung up on clotheslines.

This is the hour of peace, the hour for by-passing your problems, the hour for not having to speak to anyone—the hour for listening lazily to the caw of a gull and smelling the sea air and watching the city coming slowly to life with each minute that passes. This is the hour you hunt for for days, weeks, months and sometimes never find.

THE COMPANY HAS FETCHED SIXTY ACTORS and actresses, mostly extras, and they arrange themselves along the rail—wearing old, beat-up clothes with the tight-fitting European cut to them. Some of the men have fierce mustaches, and the women have scarves over their heads. The star of the film is Jose Ferrer, the Academy Award winner, and he wanders around in a dark fedora, an ill-shapen blue overcoat and huge, worn black shoes. Director George Seaton tries to keep the curious ones from under his feet and their voices out of his sound track. You watch them make movies, as the Saturnia heads back toward Manhattan for her 44th street pier in the Hudson river—and then you look behind you suddenly and you have to grin. The real immigrants are watching the fake immigrants being filmed—and the real ones are well-dressed, clean-shaven and quite prosperous looking.

Then the liner noses her way into dock and the immigrants get set to walk onto the golden land, as immigrants have for a hundred years. You look around and then leave, and as you do, you hear from somewhere in the ship's innards, a phonograph playing Roll Out the Barrel. In a little while, you are back in New York, which you left just a few hours ago. The trucks rumble, brakes squeal, a cop yells at a tourist. Life has begun once more.

THEN THE SAUK CASTS OFF and you head down the bay, all the familiar landmarks coming into view. Ferries bustle around the Statue of Liberty like ants around jelly and you look across to Governors Island and see that the military life, too, is beginning, with Army trucks tooling slowly along. The water is soapy and light green, as it swirls by the port side where you stand, and then suddenly you look back and see it, the incredible sight, the dream against the sky—the skyscrapers of New York, looking as if they were neatly stacked on a shelf but would collapse in a heap if a child trailed his hand carelessly across them.

All the words have been written about this sight; there is nothing more to say. You look at it in silence for a long time, and then it has faded from view in the morning mist and the Sauk has cut her engines and is sidling up to the Italian liner Saturnia, your destination this day.

Once aboard, you head for the dining room. Some orange juice and a quick soft-boiled egg—the other newspapermen turn away from you in pale anguish—and then you go up on deck where a movie company has roped off a space and is shooting scenes for the film to be made of George Panashivsky's best-seller, Anything Can Happen.

There are about 6,000 distinct species of grass in the world.

lazily to the caw of a gull and smelling the sea air and watching the city coming slowly to life with each minute that passes. This is the hour you hunt for for days, weeks, months and sometimes never find.

THE COMPANY HAS FETCHED SIXTY ACTORS and actresses, mostly extras, and they arrange themselves along the rail-wearing old, beat-up clothes with the tight-fitting European cut to them. Some of the men have fierce mustaches, and the women have scarves over their heads. The star of the film is Jose Ferrer, the Academy Award winner, and he wanders around in a dark fedora, an ill-shapen blue overcoat and huge, worn black shoes. Director George Seaton tries to keep the curious ones from under his feet and their voices out of his sound track. You watch them make movies, as the Saturnia heads back toward Manhattan for her 44th street pier in the Hudson river—and then you look behind you suddenly and you have to grin. The real immigrants are watching the fake immigrants being filmed—and the real ones are well-dressed, clean-shaven and quite prosperous looking.

Then the liner noses her way into dock and the immigrants get set to walk onto the golden land, as immigrants have for a hundred years. You look around and then leave, and as you do, you hear from somewhere in the ship's innards, a phonograph playing Roll Out the Barrel. In a little while, you are back in New York, which you left just a few hours ago. The trucks rumble, brakes squeal, a cop yells at a tourist. Life has begun once more.

THEN THE SAUK CASTS OFF and you head down the bay, all the familiar landmarks coming into view. Ferries bustle around the Statue of Liberty like ants around jelly and you look across to Governors Island and see that the military life, too, is beginning, with Army trucks tooling slowly along. The water is soapy and light green, as it swirls by the port side where you stand, and then suddenly you look back and see it, the incredible sight, the dream against the sky—the skyscrapers of New York, looking as if they were neatly stacked on a shelf but would collapse in a heap if a child trailed his hand carelessly across them.

All the words have been written about this sight; there is nothing more to say. You look at it in silence for a long time, and then it has faded from view in the morning mist and the Sauk has cut her engines and is sidling up to the Italian liner Saturnia, your destination this day.

Once aboard, you head for the dining room. Some orange juice and a quick soft-boiled egg—the other newspapermen turn away from you in pale anguish—and then you go up on deck where a movie company has roped off a space and is shooting scenes for the film to be made of George Panashivsky's best-seller, Anything Can Happen.

Try, Stop Me

At the entrance of the CBS studio, Jack Benny was stopped by a moocher who claimed to be an old vaudeville pal and put the bee on Jack for a two-dollar loan. "I'll pay you back if it's the last thing I do," promised the poor fellow as he pocketed the two greenbacks.

Benny forgot all about the incident until about eight months later, to his surprise, he received a letter from the man, postmarked Denver. "I've struck it rich in Colorado, Jack," he boasted. "Everything broke right at the same time. Happy days are here again. I've got a great job and a society girl is going to marry me. Thanks for everything." The letter had a postscript: "I am enclosing one dollar on account of my debt. I'll send the other just as soon as I can spare it!"

NEW YORK—There are a thousand different worlds in this city but none is more fascinating than the one that you see before you now, as you stand in the bow of the Coast Guard cutter Sauk and wait to go down the bay to meet an incoming ship.

It is 6 a. m.—dawn of a hot and sticky summer day in New York. But here by Pier 9 of the East river the early morning is cool and the faint smell of salt comes to you from the dirty, oil-slicked water. A sea gull flaps his wings once and glides away off the stern, a poem in the sky. Cans and sticks float by. The buildings of downtown Manhattan are dim and gray and silent, with here and there a light, as if the cleaning woman had forgotten to snap off the switch the night before.

Customs officials, Coast Guardsmen and newspapermen, the keepers of the morning watch, come aboard the Sauk. They are subdued and quiet, for it is only two hours after the time of day when man's vitality is at its lowest ebb. Some of the newspapermen, in the great tradition, are hung over. Up the river, in the distance, cars already are beginning to cross the bridges to Queens and Brooklyn, and over on a neighboring pier a couple of dozen red and green truck bodies sit silently, waiting for a ship to take them. Lord knows where.

The traffickers of the seas already are afoot. As you look out, you see tugs and ferries pushing their way around the foot of Manhattan. A barge full of freight cars passes. You peer around the Sauk, a business-like craft painted in black and white, and through a hatch you look down and see seamen's laundry hung up on clotheslines.

This is the hour of peace, the hour for by-passing your problems, the hour for not having to speak to anyone—the hour for listening

Columbus Team Hands Ashville 6-1 Defeat

Ashville amateur baseballers Sunday were handed a 6-1 defeat by invading David Davies hardballers of Columbus in Community Park.

The invading Columbus team scored all six of its runs in the sixth inning of the contest on four singles, a walk, fielder's choice and an error.

Ashville's lone tally was in the first inning on a single and triple. Jack Hix was the losing pitcher, although giving up only seven hits and fanning 12.

Hix is slated to go on the mound again next Sunday afternoon in Ashville against Carroll's Grill of Columbus, while Dave Kraft will take over pitching chores Monday in a Labor Day test against Columbus Merchants.

Columbus Team Hands Ashville 6-1 Defeat

Ashville amateur baseballers Sunday were handed a 6-1 defeat by invading David Davies hardballers of Columbus in Community Park.

The invading Columbus team scored all six of its runs in the sixth inning of the contest on four singles, a walk, fielder's choice and an error.

Ashville's lone tally was in the first inning on a single and triple. Jack Hix was the losing pitcher, although giving up only seven hits and fanning 12.

Hix is slated to go on the mound again next Sunday afternoon in Ashville against Carroll's Grill of Columbus, while Dave Kraft will take over pitching chores Monday in a Labor Day test against Columbus Merchants.

GIANTS, YANKEES ARE IDLE

Giants Only Five Games Behind Brooks In Chase

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—The "magic number" for Leo Durocher's dandies today is five.

When the unbuttoned Lip asks for five for his boys, he isn't looking for a hep cat handshake. That's the figure his fantastic New York Giants need to catch the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The upward-soaring Giants are beginning to beat in terms of 1935. In winning their 16th straight Monday, the New York Yankees called the longest victory since that year.

Cleveland's Indians and the New York Yankees called a temporary truce Monday in their tooth and nail battle for the American League flag. Both teams were idle during the day.

In the only American League contest of the day, Philadelphia carded a narrow 1-0 shutout victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Warren Spahn won his 17th game and Max Surkont hit his 10th as the Boston Braves topped the St. Louis Cardinals twice, 6 to 3 and 4 to 2.

The Philadelphia Phillies gave the Cincinnati Reds plenty of nothing, twice. The score of the first game was Philadelphia, 2, Cincy, 0, on the strength of a first-inning Homer by Bill Nicholson.

In the second game it was Del Wilber, 3, Cincy, 0. The catcher hit three homers to gain Ken Johnson the win.

It was the fifth, sixth and seventh circuit blows for the backstop and it was the third blank job in a row dealt the Reds by the Phillies.

Whitey Lockman's pop single with the bases loaded tied it. Bill Rigney's fly out with the sacks saturated won it.

Corwin hurled a six-hitter, including homers by Hank Sauer and Bob Ramazotti, to take the nightcap. Ed Stanky and Monte

Floating Dream One Of Favorites In $65,000 Little Brown Jug

DELAWARE, Aug. 28 — It's hard to imagine when folks in Delaware tell you some 35,000 "out-towners" are going to "whoop and holler" around a little brown jug in their fair city.

But not so when you've learned the visitors are harness racing fans and the Jug, worth $65,000, is the sport's richest half-mile harness track classic for three-year-olds, slated to be held Sept. 20.

Even now, with the Jug over three weeks off, Delaware's 12,000 folk are dusting off last year's welcome signs and preparing accommodations for the largest crowd expected in the six-year history of the big racing event.

And from the way Don R. Millar, executive vice-president of the governing U. S. Trotting Association sums it up, this year's spectacle will leave much to talk about.

MILLAR DECLARES the 1951 Jug is bringing together 62 eligibles from 19 states—the swiftest collection of three-year-old pacers ever to converge on one race track and all scrambling for the biggest purse the sport has ever offered.

The only three-year-old to dominate the racing scene this year is Tar Heel, owned by W. N. Reynolds of Winston-Salem, N.C.

Tar Heel is the only three-year-old pacer to complete a chain of three victories, the latest coming last week at Sedalia, Mo. A week earlier, Tar Heel established a season's record of 1:59.4-5 at Springfield, Ill., and still another a week before that recorded a 2:01 at Goshen, N. Y.

The fleet-footed winner, however, has yet to triumph on a half-mile track and is slightly overshadowed in this department by four other candidates.

The foursome has paced a half-mile track as fast or better than the Jug record of 2:02.3-5, the best performance being turned in by Solicitor.

Solicitor, also owned by Reynolds, is being touted as the half-miles biggest winner for his record of 2:02.

Next is Direct Rhythm, boasting a 2:02.1-5 record on a two-lap oval. Rhythm is owned by W. G. Reynolds of Louisville, Ky.

In order come Floating Dream, Ohio pacer queen, and Chuck Volo, the Ft. Fairfield, Me., pacer who twice has run a creditable 2:02.3-5 on a minor oval.

FLOATING DREAM, claimed by Driver McKinley Kirk of Washington C. H. and the Valley brothers of Waverly, covered the mile in 2:02.2-5 on a half-mile track.

Other colts which appear certain to have the final $500 payment made on them the day before the Jug and all having a record of 2:05 or better are:

Top Hat Tallies 9-1 Win, Moves Up In Tourney

Top Hat softball team of Circleville felled Lewisburg softballers Monday night in the state tournament in Washington C. H. and advanced into the semifinals of the loser's bracket.

Hatter swatters advanced in the tourney with a lopsided 9-1 victory over the Lewisburg aggregation and was scheduled to have played its loser's semifinal contest in Washington Tuesday afternoon.

Matched against the hatters in the loser's semifinal test was Hamilton, winners last year in the state softball tournament. The game, weather permitting, was to have been played at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday.

In its Monday victory, the Hatters collected two runs in each of the first and third innings while blasting into a five-run spree in the fifth.

With an inning flurry was spearheaded by Bob Tracy, who rapped out a homer with two men on base.

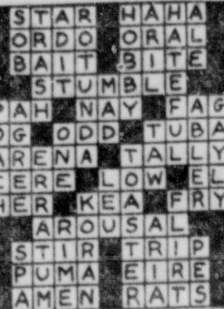

PAUL NEFF was winning pitcher for the Top Hat crew during the contest, giving up

Buckeyes Picked To Take Big Ten

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—An article in a current issue of a national magazine places Ohio State's Buckeyes first in the Big Ten football race this year and third in the nation.

But sports writer Grant Land Rice, who authored the article, says the Bucks will not finish number one in the midwest.

Rice predicts that honor will go to Michigan State, which he also tabs number two behind Tennessee. Any differences of opinion about midwest supremacy, says Rice, should be settled Oct. 6 when the Spartans come to Columbus to play in Ohio stadium.

The article goes on to say that Illinois, "dark horse of the conference," will be Ohio State's chief obstacle to the Big Ten crown.

Rain Cancels Park Contest

A contest in Circleville's new industrial softball league was cancelled by rain Monday in Ted Lewis Park.

The contest, a match between Harpster and Yost and Scioto Elks, will be played as the second game of Wednesday night's league card.

Meanwhile, a twin bill featuring Contender vs. Circleville Oil and General Electric vs. Lawless is due Tuesday night in the park.

Sokolsky's

For what is at stake is not only Japan, but the bastion, Japan-Okinawa - Philippines - Formosa-Australia - New Zealand. That is one fact that came out of the long 2,000,000-word palaver in the Russell Committee hearings into the dismissal of General MacArthur.

No matter how objectionable it may be to many persons in many countries, the fact remains that because of geography, propinquity and history, Japan must be the pivot of the Pacific Union and Japan must be armed.

The fear of an armed Japan is real; so is the fear of an armed Germany. But Russia has made it inevitable that both should be armed and that the United States should make herself responsible for arming her former enemies. Great Britain is equally responsible in Asia because of the ill-conceived British policy of a deal with the Chinese Communists.

Russia might have averted all this had the Kremlin not decided upon empire-building at Yalta. But Stalin's lust for world dominance is unslackable and the United States cannot wait until it stands alone, an island in a Soviet World.

The policy of appeasement (1943-51) was based on the assumption that, in time, the Russians would be smart enough to realize that another general war could undo all their gains achieved since 1938. But that assumption has proved to be an error and a new, positive policy had to be designed and accepted. The Japanese Treaty is a central factor in that policy.

NEW BUSINESS MEANS BETTER LIVING . . .

THE NORFOLK AND WESTERN IS HELPING YOUR COMMUNITY AND YOUR STATE TO GROW AND PROSPER

Every new or expanded industry in the six-state territory* served by the Norfolk and Western Railway means MORE BUSINESS and BETTER LIVING for the people and communities of this great and growing region.

During the ten year period 1941-50, a total of 2,506 new industries and additions to existing plants were established along the line of the N. & W. and tributary to the territory. They were built at a capital investment of $1,006,934,028 and employed 279,901 persons.

The Norfolk and Western is proud to have had a hand in helping to convince industrialists of the many outstanding advantages in this thriving region by assisting state and local Chambers of Commerce and other progressive minded groups, or by working directly with manufacturers seeking suitable plant sites.

For more than half a century, the railway has maintained an efficient Industrial and Agricultural Department, staffed by specialists, who are charged with the specific duty of working for the industrial and agricultural development of the territory. Their files are filled with up-to-the-minute data on this area, including raw materials, power, water, labor supply, available plant sites, etc. This information is constantly being presented to manufacturers and other business men throughout the country. In short, members of the N. & W. Industrial and Agricultural Department are "salesmen" for the territory.

The area served by the railroad has had a healthy growth during the past ten years. The Norfolk and Western has faith in the continued growth and progress of the communities along its line, and will continue to work vigorously to bring in new industries, which mean more business, more jobs and better living in this great and growing region.

Faith in the Land of Plenty — and down-to-earth evidence that it is a GOOD place for industry — is seen in the 2,506 new industries and additions to plants, representing a capital investment of more than a billion dollars, and employing over 279,000 more people, that have located in this territory during the last ten years. This is proof that manufacturers outside the territory — and those already in the area — know the Land of Plenty is great and growing — and that their business can grow along with it.
